About the Author and Book

Dr. Sahana Udupa is a social anthropologist and communications scholar with research interests in journalism cultures, digital media politics, religion and global urbanization.

Sahana's book, Making News in Global India: Media, Publics, Politics (Cambridge University Press) is a critical reading of news cultures and urban transformation. The book builds on multiyear ethnographic fieldwork inside the Times of India, the largest media house in India, and the bilingual news field in the city of Bangalore – the much hyped outsourcing hub for the global high-tech economy. The book shows how the expanding news media played a critical role in the contested aspiration of building a 'global city' in India, when commercial journalism became both an object and agent of global urbanization.
